

from 'The Real World

I have written a book of philosophy

I have written my entire life

Salad grows in the garden

I don't care where

Emotions are mere byproducts of our responses to stimuli

It is possible to have too many positive emotions

It is actually a pathological condition

Let's start with some self-analysis

The three main attachment styles are secure, anxious, and avoidant

Everything is a countable infinity

On poem-hunter.com, my poetry is rated 9.1/10, compositely

Many of us wind up confusing love with obsessive passion

In many cases the probability is so high it amounts to a certainty

It should be noted all the proceeds from this venture will go toward a nonprofit I've dreamed of opening

100%

The door was ludicrous yet passable

Like fighting a war to prevent a war

Research indicates pursuing happiness is inversely associated with it

You can't be an artist if you can't be alone

Don't feel bad for me

I have experienced my own birth

Research indicates every person is a scientifically unique situation

With identical feelings

Some researchers claim the figure's an illusion created by sunlight striking a glass bottle

The cows starved to death because the farmer had to pay his mortgage

I gave up ideas long ago

If someone else determines the wave function of a system, tell me about it

You probably want to expand yourself by including another person within yourself

The city that is built on a hill cannot be hid

Of the 91 poems I have published online, hundreds remain un-transcribed

The mind gets lost in negative rumination

Like a lab rat

One of my hands is typing

The other is good for nothing

Dear Beloved Friend

I am a businesswoman dealing with gold exportation

All this change reflects the normal workings of the market

The bone-on-bone rubbing that occurs when the cartilage is gone

According to others, human beings are objective and impartial characters

An unmistakable glass-like polish on the surface

Quiet, the algorithm is trying to think

Popular culture does a disservice to most

Like us, animals are susceptible to emotional contagion

I wouldn't be a celebrity for ten million dollars

The impossible ideals we see promoted and heralded everywhere

Happy New Year, my dear, I'm John Kennedy

Only a bit of this has to do with how you feel

Most art is never displayed

The rich want to buy expected value

A growing body of research suggests you're nobody until you've been branded

The cow is easily identifiable in the field

Less so on the plate

This is an ongoing process

The rest is a product of mental arithmetic
